LEARNING PARTNERSHIP

There are multiple opportunities to add joy to our learning and subtract from the winter blues this week. Tonight is the SOLD OUT annual Chaplaincy Lecture at Alleyn's, and on Friday there is the opportunity for Year 10+ students to hear Alex Bellos talk engagingly about Maths. Staff members with a responsibility for EPQ delivery are invited to an exploratory workshop on Tuesday 24th January. This week you need to book tickets for next week's events: on Wednesday there's the SSLP's flagship event God & The Big Bang, which explores the relationship between religion and science, also on Wednesday is Ben Garrod talking about Great Ape Conservation and then on Thursday David Strakey will be covering 800 years of Political History from the Magna Carta to Brexit. There's a lot not to miss!

The City and The Geographical Imagination

If you'd like to attend the talk by Professor David Gilbert (Professor of Urban and Historical Geography at Royal Holloway) then you need to book tickets this week. He will discuss what to expect from studying Geography at degree level and explore the theme of Global Cities and the Geographical Imagination on Thursday 9th February.

Science Week

British Science week 2017 is arranged for 10th to 19th March. Please make sure your teachers are aware of all the excellent resources available on the dedicated website www.britishtscienceweek.org. We'd love to have an SSLP Science week to involve as many schools as possible, it would be great to hear about any ideas or opportunities.

Glee Day

We're getting ever closer to confirming a Glee event. It has been agreed that an event for pupils in years 7 to 9 will be held at the end of March and will be hosted by Alleyn's in their ultra modern theatre. If you have any useful contacts or want to be involved get in touch.
